

LOVE AND TRUST

I trusted you, I gave my heart to you. You broke my spirit and my heart. You were my life, my sunshine, my world, and I thought I was yours.

One day we went for a ride and I was so happy. You stopped the car and we got out—I thought we were going for a walk in the woods together.

JODY, an abandoned Great Dane, now at the Rescue and looking for a home.

But you left me standing by the edge of the road! I tried to catch you as you drove away, but you kept going faster until I fell over from exhaustion and you disappeared into the sunset.

I waited and waited for days and weeks, yet you never returned. My feet were raw, my stomach hurt from being so hungry, yet I waited. I loved you and thought you loved me! I was sure you would come back for me, but the weeks passed and you never returned.

When you were sick I sat with you. When you needed a friend I was there for you. When you needed a shoulder to cry on I was there for you.

How could you leave me that way? How could you break my heart? Did my love and devotion mean nothing to you? I hope you are proud of yourself. I almost died waiting for you to come back for me!

Someone did care—she stopped to help me and now I am at the Rescue. The Rescue volunteers tell me that someday I will trust again and love again, but never as I trusted and loved you!

You, my friend, taught me a hard lesson, humans are not dog's best friend!

REGGIE, an abandoned Great Dane at HHGDR

NEW "PAWTOGRAPHED" ITEMS BY MOZART

Mozart, the Great Dane artist, has pulled out all the stops with his new spring line!

We now have everything from kitchen to athletic and leisure wear. And it's all on eBay for your buying pleasure.

New women's attire includes "boy beater" tank tops, low rise fleece shorts, and sleeveless hoodies.

Unisex attire includes T-shirts in bright and pastel spring colors, and exercise shorts.

To keep the sun out of your eyes we've added cotton twill visors to our extensive line of ball caps.

And for your home, gift bags, wine/water bags, classy full length aprons, and rally and fingertip towels (great for drool) in a multitude of colors.

Mozart realized not everyone wanted a painting or a tile and he aims to please. He wants all to help spread the word about homeless dogs and puppy mills. What better way than by wearing the message!

Please help Mozart to continue his life mission. See what is offered on a given week by visiting HHGDR's eBay page at <http://www.hhdane.com/howtohelp/ebayauctions.htm>.

And remember all of your purchase price goes to the dogs!

RUBY'S REVIEWS

Hi everyone, yep, I'm still here! This time I read two very different books—one very interesting, and one just for fun.

The first is Dogs Never Lie About Love by Jeffrey

Moussaieff Masson. Masson is co-author of the celebrated When Elephants Weep. In Dogs Never Lie Masson looks at the emotions of us dogs (and what those emotions mean for our human-dog relationships) by bringing together stories, research, observations, and his own experience as a psychoanalyst and dog-lover. If you have ever wondered what was going on in your fur-buddy's head and heart, then this is the book for you!

I love Pinkerton, Behave! by Steven Kellogg! It's rated for ages 4-8, but I could understand it and I'm only 2 1/2, so I think it's good for all ages. Pinkerton is a harlequin Great Dane who just can't quite get it right. All of you Dane-friends will recognize a little bit (or a lot!) of your friends in Pinkerton as he tries to learn to behave. This fun book is one in a series of Pinkerton books by Kellogg. Some other Pinkerton books are: A Rose for Pinkerton; A Penguin Pup for Pinkerton; Tallyho, Pinkerton!; Prehistoric Pinkerton; and Pinkerton & Friends (a collection that includes Pinkerton, Behave!). Share your love of Danes with the neighbor kids! Maybe they will want to bring one home....

DEAR GRACIE—Advice straight from the Dane's mouth!

Dear Gracie,

My dad doesn't understand why I like to wipe my face all over him when my lips are drooly. I think he makes a perfect napkin! What's wrong with him? His sweatshirt is so much softer than the paper towels he tries to wipe my mouth with!

—Drooled & Confused

Dear Drooled & Confused,

Have your dad get on eBay and buy one of Mozart's towels—they are really soft and make great drool towels plus they help Mozart's cause! Of course you could also tell your dad the real reason you wipe your face on him is to share your prized drool—since he doesn't make enough of his own! —Gracie

Dear Gracie,

My mom and dad had a shiny new floor put down this summer (I think they called it "laminat"). I liked walking on it, until the snow came! I ran in from outside really fast, just like I always did on the carpet, and I slipped and fell. I don't ever want that to happen again, so I just stopped walking on the shiny floor!

My mom wants me to walk on the floor again and keeps telling me that I won't fall, but I don't believe her. I want to walk on the floor (I must to get to my food bowl!), but I'm just so scared of it. What should my mom do help me get over my fear? (Someone told her to do like Cesar Milan and drag me across the floor, but neither one of us thinks that is a very good idea!)

—Scared Silly

Dear Scared Silly,

If your mom tries to drag you across the floor bite her in the butt, that approach will only scare you more and will not solve the problem. Ask your mom to put down some non-sliding rugs, the kind that will stick good to the floor, so you will get comfortable again walking in that area. Once you feel secure again then she will be able to take the rugs up. Also she needs to give you a treat every time you go into that area, after all treats cure all! (BTW, the best treat is a McDonalds double cheeseburger.) —Gracie

Dear Gracie,

Our neighbors have some very strange little animals at their house. They are very long and have short little legs and pointy noses. They bark a lot, so I think they are dogs, but they are so low to the ground that I can't even give them a good sniff! They sure don't look like the dogs I stayed with at the Rescue! They scare me a little; what are they, and are they safe to make friends with?

—Big Dog on the Block

Dear Big Dog on the Block,

Dogs come in all shapes and sizes but the little ones can be real nasty, so watch your ankles! Now try laying down in a prone position so you can get up quickly if they are nasty. Then when they come up you will be able to sniff them. Of course if they are nasty you can't be held accountable. —Gracie

DOG FOOD NEEDED, Rescue forced to purchase kibble

The Rescue began spending precious resources for dog food (premium kibble) in January, for the first time in years, due to the lack of donated food.

The Rescue is feeding two tons of dog food per month. And with everything the dogs have gone through, many have special dietary needs.

Our account with a dog food distributor enables buying in bulk at a reduced price, however even with that, the additional expense of more than $1,500 each month makes things very, very tight.

The hungry homeless dogs would greatly appreciate financial donations for purchasing food. And please, contact the Rescue if you have a lead on where we can again find the donated food we desperately need!

HHGDR is a non-profit 501(c)(3) all-volunteer-run organization. Donations are tax-deductible!

VOLUNTEERS—our most sincere thanks!

SETH is a homeless Great Dane from Pickaway County.

VOLUNTEERS at work!

Volunteers and their dogs worked events around our region of Ohio, eastern Indiana, and northern Kentucky. At awareness events volunteers promoted HHGDR and adoption; educated the public about the horrors of puppy mills and the pet store/puppy mill connection; and lobbied against irresponsible breeding.

The awareness events in Ohio included Mingle with our Mutts in Columbus and Dayton; Pet Supply Plus; SuperPetz in Troy; the Taft Theater in Cincinnati; and in the Columbus area, Moochie & Co., and PETS MART.

Other HHGDR volunteers created handi-crafts to sell through eBay and craft fairs.

On Saturdays, volunteers come to the Rescue to work, beginning the day with a deep cleaning of the facility. They work with potential adopters completing applications and meeting possible adoptees. Volunteers also assist the dog-artists in creating art.

Volunteers also visited the Rescue for monthly Grooming Days held on Sundays.

Grooming Days give the Rescue dogs much-appreciated extra attention and a chance to make friends with new people, while becoming accustomed to grooming.

Check the Web site for upcoming events in your area!

FREE WAYS TO HELP

Please save the weight circles from any Purina dog food. Mail us the circles—when we get enough of them, we can turn them in to Purina and get money to help cover our vet bills. Sure, you only get a few, but a few from several people can add up to a lot for us! Please don't forget to ask your friends, neighbors, and co-workers to save their Purina weight circles also. They can really add up! Recently the Rescue earned $1,000 toward our enormous vet bill by redeeming them.

Old cell phones and empty inkjet and laser cartridges can all be redeemed by HHGDR for cash. We've found a place that recycles these items and also gives us a money for each one. We've made nearly $2,200 redeeming these "worthless" items! Remember to ask your family and friends to donate too! For a list of cartridges and phones currently being accepted, see <http://www.hhdane.com/howtohelp/cartridge.htm> or E-mail fundraiser@hhdane.com.

Do You Have a Will?

More than half of American adults don't! Without a will the state, rather than you, will determine where your assets go.

Even if you feel that you don't have much, wouldn't you rather have what you do have go where you want it to?

Tax time is a great time to start while you have your documents all assembled.

Please keep the Rescue in mind as you plan for your family and pets with a will or living trust.
